Goliath 32 Silver Oversized FAQ

Ordering online is fast and simple. Everything you need is on this page.

How do I choose between 28 and 42 inches?

Measure shoulders lying flat and add 2 to 3 inches. Match the closest interior width. A 32 inch exterior gives roughly 31 inch interior, and so on up the ladder. When in doubt, round up one size.

When does the 750 pound tier matter?

Weight capacity scales with size. Standard sizes handle 500 pounds, larger sizes step to 750. At 450 pounds or more, pick the tier with real margin, not the ceiling.

Is sealed required?

No. Sealed uses a rubber gasket and is typically chosen for religious preference or mausoleum interment. A standard in-ground burial with a vault does not require sealed construction.

Is 18 gauge meaningfully different from 20 gauge?

Yes. Lower gauge means thicker steel, so 18 gauge is noticeably heavier and more rigid. For an oversized casket, that is real structural upgrade during handling, not marketing language.

Vault and funeral home acceptance?

Every oversized casket requires an oversized vault, quoted separately. The FTC Funeral Rule requires every licensed U.S. funeral home to accept a family-provided casket with no handling fee.
