Monroe White Casket FAQ

Ordering online is fast and simple. Everything you need is on this page.

What does non-sealed mean?

No rubber gasket between the lid and shell. Non-sealed is the standard for most traditional in-ground burials with a vault. Sealed caskets are typically chosen for personal preference or mausoleum interment and do not preserve remains regardless of what a funeral director may suggest.

Is the white exterior appropriate for a viewing?

Yes. The Monroe White has a clean white crepe interior with matching white pillow and throw that creates a unified, peaceful appearance. The all-white look works well for celebration of life services, non-religious ceremonies, and families who prefer simplicity over ornamentation.

Will it fit my loved one?

The Monroe White measures 24 inches wide and 79 inches long inside, with a 500 pound weight capacity. Measure shoulders lying flat and add 1 inch. If that total is 23 inches or under, the Monroe fits comfortably. For anyone needing more width, ask about oversized models.

How is it different from the Venus Series Pieta at the same price?

The Monroe is white, non-sealed, with standard hardware for non-religious services. The Venus Series Pieta is bronze and copper, sealed, with Last Supper themed hardware for Catholic and Christian services. Same $995 price, same steel gauge, same dimensions. The difference is appearance and religious context.

Will the funeral home accept it?

Yes. The FTC Funeral Rule requires every licensed U.S. funeral home to accept a family-provided casket with no handling fee. Discount Caskets hand-delivers directly to the funeral home.
